

WRITE TO FREEDOM

Personal and Professional Development Through Creative Writing

Caspar Walsh facilitates workshops specifically designed to meet individual client and participant needs. The aim of each project is to provide short and long term support for personal and professional development through creative writing.

Write to Freedom: Caspar is passionate about providing writers of all abilities with a wide range of skills and opportunities through the creative writing process. This is achieved through the exploration of the writer's inner journey and his or her relationships with the outer world. Through the mediums of text, still images, film and sound, the Write to Freedom workshops explore life experience, career ambitions and personal mythology.

Facilitator profile: Caspar has been involved with the British prison system since he was 12 years old; as a visitor to his father, an inmate, a rehabilitated drug user, creative writing facilitator and prison writer in residence for the last 10 years.

Amongst other commissions, Caspar has had 2 feature length prison docu-dramas produced by BBC Radio 4 and has recently been commissioned by a Headline Publishing to write his autobiography on his prison experience and also a work of crime fiction. The book will be launched in May 2008.
